Suicides and Crossroads.

It has been suggested that suicides were buried at crossroads because it was usual to erect a cross at such places. Those who were excluded from holy rites were buried there as the place next in sanctity to consecrated ground. It was an old superstition that the devil danced at crossroads and that the erection of a cross there would prevent such unseemly practices. From this or some other superstition, such as the fear that his ghost might walk the earth, arose the custom of driving a stake through the suicide's body.

These plausible theories have gained many advocates, but it is more likely that burial at crossroads was intended as a mark of indignity. The temples, or rather altars, of the heathen deities were mostly at the junction of crossroads. The place of execution was there, and criminals were sacrificed to the gods; hence suicides were buried at the crossroads to give as strong an impression as possible of heathen burial. Probably, too, the publicity of such a spot, which insured the fact that a great number of people would become directly aware of the degrading consequences of the crime, had a good deal to do with its selection.

A curious fact in this connection is to be found in Plato's Laws (book ix, chapter 12). The murderer of any of his near kin, after being put to death, was "cast out of the city, naked, in an appointed place where three roads meet, and let all the magistrates, in behalf of the whole state, carry each a stone and hurl it at the head of the dead body."

"Norma" and Liberty.

In an affair of the opera of "Norma" the theatrical censor went so far as to cancel the word "liberty" (liberty) and substitute for it the word "loyalty" (loyalty). * * * Signor Ronconi, the famous baritone and a great public favorite, having, in the ardor of his role, forgotten the above mentioned emendation, was imprisoned for three days in order to refresh his memory.

Not long after, singing the line in the "Elixir d'Amore" describing how a peasant enlisted, "Vende la liberta, si fe soldato" (He sold his liberty to be a soldier), he waggishly altered it to "Vende la lealta, si fe soldato." This variation in the text was received with lively applause by the public, who always warmly welcomed anything that savored of political opposition.

The next day the poor singer was summoned by the head of the police to receive a reprimand for having said that "loyalty could be sold," to which Ronconi replied by observing that a few days before he had been taught in a way he was not likely to forget that "lealta" ought always to be substituted for "liberta."—Pietro Orsi's "Modern Italy."

For Prospects Good.

"Do you think he can support you in good style after you are married, dear? I hear he is worth nothing."

"I know Harold isn't rich, mamma, but he has his life insured for $20,000, and I could get along quite comfortably on that."—Chicago Tribune.

Giving Them the Slip.

An impetuous man in Kansas City practically lives on bananas. When he eats them, he throws the peels just outside his office door. That's the way he gives his creditors the slip.—Kansas City Star.

Rascality would have a much harder row to hoe if it were not for fools waiting to be victimized.—Chicago Democrat.

THE SUGAR BEET IN NEVADA.

The JOURNAL has been kindly permitted by Professor N. E. Wilson of the University Experiment Station to make a review of a report made for 1899 by the Secretary of Agriculture, showing progress made in the sugar industry in the United States and in the Hawaiian Islands. The report gives results for the last decade from beets grown in Nevada and furnished to the experiment station for analysis.
The beets furnished from 1891 to 1899 were of a class which had received no scientific care or attention in their growth for the development of sugar properties, but the showing made under the care they received is more than could be expected in saccharine matter.

The report made, including the year 1899, makes a showing that surpasses in sugar properties in the sugar beet grown in Nevada anything there is on record. The beets grown last year were planted and matured upon scientific principles, as ascertained and understood by those who have made the development of sugar in the sugar beet a subject of scientific observation and research.

Professors Wilson and McDowell of the Experiment Station had the growth and general development of these beets under their special direction and care, and a result in sugar was obtained that caused astonishment at the Agricultural Department at Washington. To justify our conclusion about surprise caused at Washington there is given an extract from the report, which is the following:

"The twenty-four samples received from this State confirmed the opinion previously formed, that if the proper conditions of water supply can be secured, Nevada will be one of the greatest beet sugar producing States in the Union. The content of sugar in the beets was phenomenal and the purity very satisfactory."

It may be there was no surprise at the result in sugar received from the samples sent to the department as it appears in the extract given that an opinion previously formed was confirmed, which opinion may have been formed when Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture visited the State. The phenomenal showing made of sugar properties in Nevada beets we are informed was twenty two per cent, which has not been equaled in any part of the world where sugar is taken from the sugar beet. The examples mentioned in the extract were samples sent by Prof. Wilson of the Nevada Experiment Station from beets cultivated and matured under direction of the professors in charge of the station and were taken from a quantity of beets sent to the station which had been developed in Carson Valley in Douglas county and near Lovelock in Humboldt county.

When the JOURNAL states that there is no part of the earth known that can surpass the produce of Nevada's soils in quality or in quantity it means what it is saying and by the way of confirming its statements in that respect it cites the superior quantity and quality of its sugar beets in sugar. The men who have the direction of the work in Nevada's experiment station are doing excellent work by bringing to public notice the superior advantages there are in the State to be secured by those who may in the future invest their money in the development of industries in the State.

CORRUPTION THE MEANS RELIED UPON.

The most gigantic preparations to carry the national election for Mc-Kinley by fraud that has been made in the United States is being arranged.
Hanna and others of like character are engaged in making plans for defeating the will of the people in doubtful States by a profuse use of money furnished by trusts. There is not anything remaining to the Republican party in the election, but a resort to fraud which will be made in such a way that it will be largely under the observation of the better class of citizens who will resent it by voting against McKinley and the methods of Hanna, which are well known to the man in the White House. McKinley's supposed virtue was made a source of campaign thunder four years ago which had much force in securing support for the man in some departments in social and religious life.

The galvanized religionist of the last campaign has become an open recipient of any fraudulent means in this canvass that will aid in securing his election to a second term. It is known that the millions furnished by trusts to Hanna for fraudulent use will be used in West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The intention is to corrupt a sufficient number of voters in each of these States to secure a return of the Republican electoral ticket in each of them.

Changes have been so large in the middle west in favor of Bryan that Hanna and other Republican managers have become confused in their calculations upon the more available States for the use of corruption money. New York has been giving the boss much trouble lately, which has had a tendency to create uncertainty in his mind about the future, not only in that State, but about the future in States in the middle west, that were in the early part of the campaign deemed to be safe for McKinley.

Home From the Frozen North.

Scott Hart blew into town from the west yesterday morning. His family, of course, were on the lookout for him, but his arrival was a pleasant surprise to his friends.

Scott pulled up stakes for the Klondyke in the early days of Dawson. He spent a year in the placers, meeting with indifferent luck. Later he joined the Cape Nome legions, but didn't find anything there to suit him, and soon returned to Dawson. Fortune was kind to him there and he gathered in a little dust.

Scott arrived in San Francisco a few days ago and cashed in his gold. He thinks Reno is a good enough place to tarry in for the balance of his days.

To the Public of Reno.

I have opened a new and complete line of samples of suitings in both ladies and gentlemen's materials, and am prepared to execute all orders intrusted to me to our mutual satisfaction. I guarantee a perfect fit and will do my work in a manner not to be duplicated in Reno or elsewhere. I would be pleased to see all my old friends, and also new ones. Come and inspect my goods. It will cost you nothing. Remember the place, room 2, ant,

will be respected.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Reno Is Making Material Progress—A Peep Into the Future.

Reno has made greater material progress in the past twelve months than in any other two years in its history. The innovations have come gradually, and it is only by contrasting the Reno of to-day with that of a year ago that the change can be appreciated.

Within this period the postoffice receipts increased so that a carrier system was inaugurated by the government.

The fire department has been modernized and improved by means of a model engine house, additional equipment and an electric alarm system.

There has been activity in the building trades and many handsome business and residence structures have arisen. The increase of population has more than kept pace with the work of building. There is now hardly a dwelling or business room for rent.

During the past summer many of the old plank toe catchers have given place to modern cement sidewalks.

New enterprises have come into the town and labor is more largely employed within the city limits than ever before.

Activity in prospecting and mining has stimulated trade. The old reduction works have been fitted up and have produced several carloads of bullion in the past season. A new plant for smelting ores has recently been constructed and proven to be a success in the future when its financial circumstances are straightened out.

The moral, social and educational tone of Reno has been raised by the infusion of healthy and vigorous new blood and advancement of our religious and educational institutions.

Railroad extension and the establishment of new industries, such as the Floriston paper mill, the Truckee River General Electric Company, Verdi Lumber Company, etc., have broadened our commercial horizon.

Reno has struck the up-grade and will climb steadily. Good things are in store for our people. We gaze hopefully into the future.

Election Officers Are Appointed.

Burton Writes From Boston.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in his "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," says "The axis of the earth strikes out visibly through the center of every New England city and hamlet."

But the hub of the siderial universe is Boston in particular and New England in general, according to the opinion of all true Yankees. As an example of this, notice the appended, which is an extract from a letter received yesterday from George D. Burton:

"One thirtieth of all the population of the United States, and one-twentieth of all its wealth is concentrated within a radius of fifty miles of Boston—veritably the hub of the business center—while the further fact that the average earnings per individual in the United States is only 40 cents per day, the average in Massachusetts is 73 cents—a fact of the greatest moment, for it shows that we have 80 per cent more cash to spend, which is an extra of two hundred and fifty million dollars for Massachusetts alone, to say nothing of the five other wealthy New England States."

Declared Off.

The services of the Elleford Company were tendered for a performance Sunday evening for the benefit of the Galveston sufferers. It is understood that theater, high's, tickets, etc., were to be furnished without cost and the gross receipts forwarded to the stricken city. A hitch, however, occurred. Objection was made to having the benefit take place on Sunday and it is probable that the play will not be given.

Accidental Poisoning.

A little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rosenthal accidentally swallowed some of the contents of a bottle of poison yesterday. Prompt medical attendance saved the child's life.
